

GAIA CLIMAN – CLIMATE CHANGE RISK MANAGEMENT

What consequences can climate change have for your organisation? With the help of Gaia CliMan, you can prevent harmful impacts, optimally deal with unavoidable changes and make adaptation an integral part of your climate strategy. Gaia CliMan is a decision-making tool that allows systematic risk mapping, a solid impact assessment and a cost-benefit evaluation.

Preparedness is cost-effective

Taking climate change induced risks into account in advance is cost-efficient. Without a proactive approach and systematic climate screening, threats such as weather extremes, changing precipitation patterns and more recurrent droughts can create unmanageable risks. They may affect industrial facilities and processes, transportation and logistical arrangements, agricultural production, water management or critical development projects in partner countries.

Using Gaia CliMan, we can pinpoint the climate related risks you need to consider in any decision making processes. We translate the latest research results into real term scenarios and use foresight analysis to evaluate and prioritise investments and sustainable adaptation processes.

Gaia CliMan results in the selection of the most cost-efficient adaptation measures, which will enhance the safety and sustainability of your organisation and its key activities.
